

CIVILIANS FLEE BERLIN AND OTHER GERMAN AND ITALIAN CITIES; FEAR RAIDS; NAZI OIL RESOURCES BLASTED

Swarms of Four-Motored Giants Rain Nearly 300 Tons of Explosives and Incendiaries on Ploesti—'Biggest Low-Level Mass Raid in Aviation Annals'—Nearly 200 Liberators Make 2400-Mile Round-Trip Flight

By International News Service

While civilians fled Berlin and other German and Italian cities today in fear of new Allied massed air raids like those which devastated Hamburg, one-third of the Reich's entire oil resources was believed wiped out by swarms of American Liberator bombers which blasted the huge Romanian Ploesti oil fields.

The four-motored giants rained nearly 300 tons of explosives and incendiaries on Ploesti yesterday in what was officially termed "the biggest low-level mass raid in aviation annals." From 175 to 200 Liberator bombers executed a 2,400-mile round-trip flight to carry out the devastating blow.

Lieut. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the U. S. air forces in the Middle East, said the raid may have deprived the Axis of that margin of fuel reserves needed to continue effective resistance in Italy and possibly in Russia as well.

Their air war on the Axis-held continent continued this morning as a strong force of twin-engine bombers and fighter planes soared eastward from England. They are believed to have attacked targets in northern France.

Berlin was reported in a state bordering on panic following orders to all civilians not engaged in essential services to leave the city. Those remaining were said to have spent the week-end frantically digging trenches in parks, public squares and back yards while the police requisitioned all lumber for construction of bomb shelters.

Reports filtering out of Italy told of mounting tension, particularly in Lugano, Libera, Stampa and Milan, as the Germans were reported "invading" the country, ejecting Italian troops from strategic ports and seizing fleet units in fear of imminent Italian surrender to the Allies. German troops were said to have forced Italian troops out of the vital Istrian ports of Pola, Fiume and Trieste in northeastern Italy. Numerous clashes between Italian and Nazi soldiers were reported.

Official British quarters branded as untrue a Cairo dispatch saying the United Nations had rejected a peace bid from Italian premier Pietro Badoglio. An Algiers radio report that German forces had begun to withdraw from Sicily and southern Italy also remained unconfirmed in London.

Front-line dispatches from North Africa said American mobile troops were in possession of nine key

SAYS MEN IN CHINA ARE NOT COMPLAINING

Lt. Gerald L. Molloy Flies 16 Hours in Two Days; Great Distance Involved

FACING HARDSHIPS

BUCKINGHAM, Aug. 2.—"The fellows out in the jungles of India and China do without everything that civilized people call necessities, and they never complain."

That's what Lt. Gerald L. Molloy, U. S. Air Force, writes from "Somewhere in China." He'd like to get that fact across to those who some times complain back home about the hardships of war, and to some of the big-salaried war workers who do not overalls in preference to military uniform.

Lt. Molloy, in a very interesting letter to his father, J. Carroll Molloy, Sr., of "The Glen," has flown hundreds of thousands of miles in the service in various parts of the world. He's in China right now.

"Yesterday (his letter was dated July 9th) and today I flew 16 hours in the air, so you can appreciate the distances involved," Lt. Molloy writes. Then he continues:

"Last night I was at a remote outpost in India—a perfectly terrible place—I just wish some of those continually complaining soldiers at home could be subjected to the conditions many of our boys over here are putting up with. They'd darn soon stop complaining. They have nothing out here in the way of comforts (even cigarettes are unavailable often for months at a time), their quarters are awful, the food is worse, and the climate just not fit for a white man. Yet, as I sat around and talked with a lot of the boys last night, I did not hear a word of complaint.

"The men out here are doing a magnificent job in the face of every conceivable obstacle, and believe me, they deserve every bit of support the home folks can give them."

One Man's Opinion

By Walter Kiernan
(I. N. S. Staff Writer)

Well, the War Food Administration says there will be 20 per cent less butter for us next year and it will go hard with the man who butters his toast on both sides.

We once asked a man who buttered his toast on both sides why he did it.

His answer was brief and beautiful.

"My lower teeth like butter too," he snarled.

It's a good thing for us that gasoline and butter do not mix. Else OPA would be telling us how to use the butter after we got it.

"Pleasure buttering is out," they would say. "You may have a quarter pound a week for essential bread smearing but anyone found greasing up corn on the cob will have his butter knife picked up for the duration."

That would be rationing on top of rationing. It doesn't make sense but we've had a year of it with gasoline.

Thought for the day: We'll still be butter off than Mussolini.

Announce Appointments To Three Offices

C. Wilson Roberts, Southampton attorney and banker, has been named inheritance tax appraiser and not mercantile appraiser as announced in news dispatches on Saturday. He succeeds Webster S. Achey of Doylestown.

Jesse G. Webster, Hulmeville, has been appointed investigator of deaths for the register of wills of office and not inheritance tax collector. He succeeds Marcella McGinley, of Bristol.

N. A. Staples, engineer in charge of the State Highway Department, Philadelphia district office, with headquarters at Ardmore, will be transferred to District No. 2, Clearfield, under a reorganization to become effective Monday.

Staples will be succeeded by D. C. Stackpole, who is now in charge of District No. 9, Hollidaysburg.

Stackpole will have charge of State highways in the southeastern section of Pennsylvania, including Delaware, Chester, Montgomery, Philadelphia and Bucks counties.

Fruit Crop in Bucks Expected To Be Large

BUCKINGHAM, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Ralph T. Crowell, of "Sunnyside Farms," one of the largest fruit growers in this area, states that the yield of peaches, pears and apples this year will be quite good.

Because of the shortage of canned fruit, it is believed there will be little difficulty of fruit growers disposing of their product.

It has been estimated between 8000 and 9000 baskets of peaches were picked on the Crowell farm last season, and the yield this year is expected to be about the same. About 40 acres on this farm are devoted to fruit.

This section was more fortunate than those in the western and northern section of the State, where the buds on the fruit trees were damaged by the frost.

As a result of a thorough application of sprays, the Japanese beetles have been doing little damage to fruit trees at "Sunnyside Farm."

The yield of early apples on the Crowell property this year was quite good, and the trees which bear later in the season are expected to produce a heavy crop.

MORRISVILLE LIEUT. HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Lt. M. A. Lord in Plane Which Crashes in South Pacific; Gains Safety

FUEL SUPPLY GONE

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 2.—A Morrisville officer, Lt. Michael A. Lord, has reached the safety of a South Pacific island following a plane crash at sea.

Army Air Force officials announced during the week-end that Lt. Lord had gained safety after several hours in the water.

Lord and his companions wore lifebelts. The plane, which had become lost during a storm and exhausted its fuel supply, sank almost immediately. Lord said natives of the island fed them and treated them as "royal guests" until they were found after several days by a rescue party.

Lt. Lord, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Lord, enlisted in December, 1941. He attended Temple University, Philadelphia.

ALLIES READY TO POLICE AND FEED EUROPE; PLAN TO STRAIGHTEN CHAOTIC CONDITIONS CERTAIN TO FOLLOW ASSAULT ON CONTINENT

LONDON, Aug. 2.—(INS)—Far-reaching, pre-invasion plans by a score of organizations, both military and civil, today are being formulated in Britain and the United States to straighten out the chaotic conditions almost certain to follow the Allied assault on Europe.

In both scope and detail, these plans are fully comparable to those already worked out by the military high commands for the actual landings on one or more points of the Continent. They embrace all aspects of economic and social conditions to be found in the liberated countries.

Organizations were set up here, it is understood, as long ago as the summer of 1942, to deal with the variety of problems which a successful invasion of Europe will create.

Among those of which something may be said—a number of them may still not be disclosed for security reasons—are special police units, food and clothing relief agencies, corps of rehabilitation experts, non-military engineering formations, legal and industrial tribunals and a variety of others.

Their work will begin when that of the Allied troops ends. Their tasks will involve a vast reassignment of lives and fortunes on a continent enslaved by the Nazis for three years or more.

Not only Britain and the United States are represented in this work; all free Allied governments with their headquarters here will participate and have their own units to work with the larger British and American organizations.

Particular examples of what the work will be like, and how it will be handled, can be provided by the few permitted details of some of the agencies.

A large police force has been recruited here in Britain. It is composed of many of the best peace-time policemen of big British cities, and led by long experienced administrative officials. With them will work American and Allied law-maintaining units which have been trained, if not actually together, under exactly the same system.

When a country, or even part of a country, has been freed by invading troops, this organization will swing into action to take over the police duties of towns and cities, to preserve order behind the lines and help in the rounding up of quislings who will later stand trial.

It is quite possible that European police corps will co-operate, but nothing is to be taken for granted. In Europe, it is hoped, there will be no repetition of the confusion of North Africa in November, 1942.

A similar organization has been recruited and trained here to defeat any possible Axis plans for a scorched-earth policy as they retreat through Europe. It will be the job of this force, which includes

RATIONING QUOTA UP FOR TIRES AND TUBES

Bucks Quota for August on Passenger Car Grade 1 Tires is 1200

TUBES LISTED AT 564

Greatly increased rationing quotas of used and recapped passenger car tires for August were announced today by the Philadelphia Office of Price Administration.

The number of Grade III tires available to eligible civilians in the eight-county Philadelphia district totals 7021 as compared with a quota of 3688 for July. District quotas of new Grade I tires showed a decline from 15,225 in July to 14,988 in August.

OPA said it was not unlikely that many motorists eligible for Grade I tires may find it necessary to accept used or recapped tires as long as the quota of new tires remains at the reduced levels.

Bucks County quotas for August were announced as follows: New grade one tires, 1200; grade three tires, 564; tubes, 730; truck tires, 297; truck tubes, 269.

Carry War Closer To Italy

Allied Headquarters in North Africa—Naval shells roaring into harbors and railway lines along strategic points of the lower mainland carried the war more acutely into Italy today.

The new naval bombardments helped to cut off communications with Sicily entirely. The railway over the river Oliva, main feedline into the Messina terminus, was heavily bombed.

Appearance of American naval forces on the sea flank of the U. S. Seventh Army considerably aided the Yanks in throwing back the Germans along the north coast, where strong Axis positions are impeding rapid progress with extensive road demolitions.

The two-pronged attack against Naples and Capo Di Chino was carried out by Flying Fortresses. Hits were scored on two transports in the inner drydock in Naples and upon a seaplane base. The railway station was described as "practically destroyed" by a direct hit, while another bomb caused a tremendous explosion in a gas works.

At Capo di Chino, the airfield itself, hangars and the headquarters building were blasted with a number of aircraft on the ground destroyed. One large oil dump was blown up.

Another attack by medium bombers was made against the harbor of Milazzo, where hits were scored on the docks and small boats.

195 Injured in Harlem Riots

New York—New York's Harlem was turned into a virtual armed camp today in the wake of a wild night of rioting which already has caused four deaths and injuries to scores of persons.

As more than 5,000 policemen, firemen and soldiers moved into the area armed with riot guns, clubs and revolvers in anticipation of further trouble, the latest toll read this way:

Dead, four. Injured, 195. Arrested, 263.

BENSALEM'S FIRST WAR BOND BOOTH OPENS

In Operation at Affair Held at Kings Hall, in Andalusia

IN CHARGE OF JUNIORS

ANDALUSIA, Aug. 2.—The first war savings stamp and bond booth in Lower Bensalem since the recent organization of the township bond sales organization, was operated Thursday evening at King's Hall during the covered dish supper given by the choir of the Church of the Redeemer.

Mrs. Fredrick C. Juliff, district chairman for the territory, appointed two of her junior committee to take charge of sales for the evening. Eight dollars worth of assorted priced war savings stamps were sold. The junior saleswomen were Miss A. Cecella Juliff and Miss Hester Wright.

Mrs. A. Mercer Biddle of "The Dell," has accepted the post of chairman of special investment bonds for the forthcoming drive in September, and Miss Mary Kowalski and Mrs. I. Leon Kowalski, of "Long Lane Farm," Byberry and Knights Road, chairman and vice-chairman respectively, in charge of bond and stamp sales for the Polish community of the township.

Announce New W. M. C. Set-Up in Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—A realignment of geographical administrative divisions of the War Manpower Commission was effected today so that every section of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware will be given full service through WMC area directors.

Frank L. McNamee, regional manpower director, stated that the realignment eliminated six districts in Pennsylvania and two in New Jersey, which heretofore had received only limited service.

The territory formerly within districts is incorporated into WMC areas, each with a director, and a staff to supervise the WMC program and the operations of the United States Employment Service, maintain current analyses of the labor market conditions, assist industry in effecting the maximum utilization of its manpower, and to institute aggressive recruitment campaigns where necessary.

The realignment will give several areas more territory to serve and some of the area management-labor war manpower committees will be revised and reconstituted to fit needs of the new areas.

Two new areas are set up in Pennsylvania with headquarters at Altoona and Greensburg, and the Harrisburg area is consolidated with the York-Lancaster area. Headquarters for this area will be at Lancaster, and Harold J. Mehl will serve as acting area director.

The Lancaster area will include the service zones of U. S. Employment Service offices in that city; Lebanon, York, Harrisburg, Gettysburg and Chambersburg, the latter a critical labor market shortage area. All of Franklin, Adams, York, Lancaster, Dauphin, Perry, Cumberland and Lebanon counties will be served from Lancaster.

The Philadelphia area is reduced by the transfer of the New Jersey portion of that area into a new area with headquarters at Camden. This area now includes Philadelphia, Delaware, Bucks and Chester counties and all of Montgomery county except the portion including and above Pottstown. This takes in the service areas of USES offices in Philadelphia, Chester, Coatesville, Norristown, Doylestown and Bristol. Rudolf F. Vogeler is serving as acting area director.

3 WEEKS' FURLOUGH GIVEN INDUCTEES GOING INTO ARMY

Approximately 80 Young Men Examined in Philadelphia Today

GIVEN CIGARETTES

Navy and Marine Corps En- trants Have Shorter Periods

Those young men from this area who are being examined in Philadelphia today for service in the armed forces will have a longer period for furlough than other inductees have had, provided they are accepted for the army.

Those accepted for the U. S. Army will be granted three weeks of furlough before starting training, if it is their desire to have the free time at once. The period for those entering the navy and marine corps will no doubt be shorter, state officials at the Local Selective Service Board, No. 1, here.

Approximately 80 are in Philadelphia being examined today. When they gathered at Bristol railroad station this morning members of the "36 for Victory" distributed cigarettes.

A few of the men expressed a desire to enter the marine corps.

There were in the group a few married men who volunteered for service.

Poultrymen Told To Use Feed On Profitable Stock

Newtown, Perkasie and Doylestown were the scenes of sectional meetings for poultrymen on Thursday, when 150 poultry raisers heard C. O. Dossin, State College poultry specialist, speak.

Mr. Dossin informed that there probably will not be sufficient feed for all livestock that is on the farms today, and therefore available feed should be used only for the most profitable animals.

He urged the poultrymen to make room for pullets in the laying house since in general, pullets are more profitable from the standpoint of egg production.

The general rule is not to have more than 40 percent of the flock being old birds, except in the case of hatcherymen, Mr. Dossin said.

"Many poultrymen are planning to keep pullets on range longer so that the birds will have the advantage of good pasture as feed," the specialist declared. He added that grass silage will probably be used by a lot of poultrymen, especially the breeders.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

William G. Henderson received his commission as 2nd Lieutenant in the Coast Artillery Corps upon successfully completing the officer candidate course at the Antiaircraft Artillery School, Camp Davis, N. C., on July 29th. His local address is 401 Radcliffe street.

The newly commissioned officer will take up his new duties in the Antiaircraft Artillery after a short furlough. The course at the Antiaircraft Artillery School is one of the most difficult of the officer candidate tests in the army. Not only do candidates have to meet the high standards of leadership necessary to all officers, but they must be able to master and put into practice the complicated technical art of Antiaircraft Artillery. Their studies and practical work involve mainly the means and actions by which swift flying enemy planes can be shot down or kept from successfully performing bombing missions. In addition, A. A. officers must be able to put their guns to use in other artillery purposes, such as anti-tank.

"EXPLAINING" THE JAP

What accounts for the overbearing, bullying conduct on the part of the Japanese soldier, so frequently reported in dispatches? Prof. John F. Embree, a Canadian anthropologist, says it is due to a severe emotional shock which most of the Japs receive while they are still babies.

Japanese mothers give each baby all their attention until the next one arrives. The infant nurses at any time it wishes and if it sees anything it wants, it can have it simply by putting up a howl. That works fine for the time being, says the professor, but when the next baby arrives, the first is placed in less tender care. Frequent tantrums of temper follow. This sudden shift in the status of motherly affection, explains the professor, creates an early sense of insecurity which in turn produces an adult who is never sure of himself and who, through compensation, may become almost a paranoiac. The manifestation is frequently desire for assassination or suicide.

Professor Embree sees Japan as essentially a nation of peasant culture which has undertaken the engrafting of the material side of Western culture without compensating mental and spiritual attitudes of the West. The result is an incongruous mixture which plays hob with the Japanese as an individual.

Maybe so. But most persons will continue to regard the Jap as a yellow rat who couldn't be anything except what he is because he was born that way.

PRISONERS OF WAR

Uniformed persons have complained that Italian soldiers interned at Camp Aterbury, Indiana, are being treated as guests rather than prisoners. The reply of the United States Army is that these men are not convicts, but prisoners of war.

Their treatment is strictly prescribed by an international agreement to which the United States and Italy are parties. While they are in this country's custody the Italians may have the same food as is served to the American Army. Force may not be used upon them unless they attempt to escape, and they are to be paid a small amount if they work out side their stockade.

The United States is obeying the provisions of the Geneva convention, hopeful that the same humane treatment will be accorded American soldiers who are prisoners of any of the Axis powers. Any touch of brutality or unnecessary harshness for Italian, German or Japanese prisoners confined in the United States would be seized upon as an excuse for retaliation by the powers that now have thousands of Americans in prison camps.

Britain and Germany had a touch of that when prisoners were shackled. It is not evidence of softness when America treats a war prisoner humanely. Rather it is an illustration of the type of justice that is one of the war's objectives.

Secretary Ickes calculates the value of this country's natural resources at $12,000,000,000, which is fortunate if true.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol November 17, 1881. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The homestead of the Swift family in Bensalem near Newportville, known as The Lodge, was sold at public sale by the legatees of the late Robert Swift to C. N. Taylor, for $125.75 per acre. It contains about 100 acres. The house is one of the old-time mansions, with large rooms, high ceilings and spacious halls and stairways, and there is a tradition that the Masonic Lodge of Bristol held meetings there.

A marble tablet, in the form of a shield, made at the marble yard of William Davis, has been put up on the front of the Methodist Church by the Young Men's Christian Association of the church. The tablet bears inscriptions denoting the time of the various services of the church.

Hulmeville has hopes that its cotton factory will be rebuilt.

Rev. Joseph Smith will succeed Rev. Olin Mintzer as pastor of the Tullytown and Emilie M. E. Churches. The latter has been appointed to a church mission in Montana.

Last evening a meeting was held in the lecture room of the Presbyterian Church for the purpose of taking initiatory steps toward the organization of a Pastoral Aid Society.

The site for the proposed celebration of the bi-centennial of Bucks County has been referred to a committee, who are divided as to what place to select. The "Advance," alluding to the matter thinks that in point of convenience of access and appropriateness on account of age, Bristol as one of the historic towns of the Commonwealth, is entitled to all the honors that can be heaped upon her. She will presently be having a celebration of her own account.

The regular monthly meeting of the burgess and council was held last Monday evening at the council chamber, and there were present J. Wesley Wright, burgess; William H. Booz, William H. Grundy, Robert W. Holt, L. A. Hoguet, C. E. Scheide and James Wright.

On motion the street committee were instructed to report the probable cost of repairs to the Pond street sewer, leading from Mill street to the canal basin, at the next meeting of council, and also to ascertain how many persons are using the sewers and what compensation the borough receives therefor.

On motion the matter of painting the upper story of the engine house was referred to the fire committee with power to act.
On motion Fire Company No. 2 were permitted to take their apparatus out of service for one month, providing that necessary apparatus be substituted for that time.

OUR VICTORY GARDEN

By Jane Cochran

(1 N. S. Staff Correspondent)
Tomato plants are going up on stakes in Victory Gardens these days, and the gardeners are anxiously watching for each sign of progress.

The day when the first ripe tomato is plucked is a big day in the life of the gardener, and having the first ripe tomato is a mark of achievement in the neighborhood.

Your tomato patch is the center of your Victory Garden. No crop is more useful in keeping the family table supplied with fruit. It's not the richest vegetable in vitamins, but it ranks near the top and it can be served in so many different ways that your family will eat it almost daily, without complaint.

Only 200 years ago, people were convinced that tomatoes were poisonous—now they're rated high not only for flavor but for their productiveness. Tomatoes will produce heavily for the space occupied.

Tomatoes, too, are easy to grow and will thrive under a wide range of conditions. They're a hot weather plant, requiring a long season, and preferring rich soil, and they come in many variations.

You can get tomatoes that mature early, tomatoes that mature late, mid-season tomatoes and tomatoes in a great variety of size and color. There are yellow and red tomatoes, white and rose colored. There are the large round types, best known of all, and small types that come in shapes resembling plums, pears, etc. These make excellent preserves and they're interesting for salad use.

Yellow tomatoes have more Vitamin C than red tomatoes, but less Vitamin A. Some of them also are less acid in flavor. The type you choose depends not only on your individual preferences but on the space in your garden.

Victory Gardeners, with only a small space, are getting more tomatoes for smaller territory by staking their plants.

The tomato is not a natural climber and must be forced to grow upward by being tied to a stake or fence. Left to its own devices, it will branch at each joint where Order it at the store which displays the familiar red Sealtest sign.

You'll also enjoy one of the new Supplee Sealtest Cream Sherbets. They're made with real fruit.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

Two nurses were at the door when they drove up, and with Drew's help they carried Spud directly to the operating room, where a moment later Diaz entered. At sight of Gloria his eyes hardened, and he made as if to turn away, but she grasped his arm.

"Father!"—she pointed to the unconscious figure on the table—"we have brought you a man who may be dying. Only you can save him."

Diaz did not answer; he glanced toward the door, where Drew stood watching, and the old look of cold hostility returned. Ignoring his daughter, Diaz walked slowly toward Drew.

"You come to me for help?"

"Yes."

"After all that has passed you think I will help you?"

"Yes."

A thin smile crossed Diaz's face. "You are right." He moved to Spud's side. "Be very thankful I am a physician first, a father second." His fingers passed over Spud's head and raised the faintly quivering eyelids.

"Did he show any weakness of muscular action?" Diaz asked.

Gloria nodded. "Yes. On the right side."

The quiet, unburied examination went on, and at last Diaz looked gravely up. "I should say this man has a concussion with intracranial hemorrhage, giving compression on the left side of the brain. There is probably also a seepage of blood at the base. His respiration is slow and regular; pulse is good; if there is any change I may have to operate and remove the blood clot. If not, it may dissolve. We can only wait." The impassive face told Drew nothing.

Diaz raised a hand. "I am a physician, not a prophet. In forty-eight hours we will know."

Forty-eight hours! He might have said eternity. In an agony of helplessness Drew moved to the window. Forty-eight hours! He felt Gloria's arms on his shoulder.

"Go back to the well, dear," she whispered. "They need you there; here you can't do anything. Send Molly up; we'll nurse Spud day and night; we'll give him every care, and I'll phone you if anything happens. Up there you'd only wear yourself out."

Already they were wheeling Spud down the corridor; drearily Drew watched the door swing closed; then, taking Gloria's face in his hands, he kissed her lips. "Do everything you can, dear—everything."

In spite of his burns; and, once the damage done by fire had been repaired, work went on even more swiftly than before.

Then, almost exactly forty-eight hours after the catastrophe, Gloria telephoned. Something in her voice warned Drew, but she only said, "Spud's conscious. Father wants you to come up."

Prey to a dozen formless fears, Drew drove the foothills road. One thing alone was certain. It hadn't been necessary for Diaz to operate, and Spud was conscious. Yet—Drew remembered that unmistakable note of distress in Gloria's tone. He drove faster.

At the hospital he went directly to Diaz's office and found the surgeon at his desk. Unsmilingly Diaz waved him to a chair. He seemed even more remote than ever, and for a time sat watching the glowing tip of his cigarette.

"What about Spud?" Drew's voice was sharp with anxiety. "I will tell you exactly his condition," Diaz answered tersely. "The blood clot has been absorbed. He is now fully conscious, but—he is blind."

"Blind?"

"Totally blind. That blow on the head has torn both retinas and detached them from the internal wall of the eye."

"Isn't there something—"

Diaz nodded. "Yes, there is one hope. It is of that I want to speak. There is an operation recently developed called the 'sealing operation.' I have never seen it performed, but I understand it has given excellent results."

"Will you try it?"

"That would be impossible. I have neither the equipment nor knowledge of the technique. Only one man performs it—Dr. Marvin, in Boston. And it would have to be performed soon."

"How soon?"

Diaz shrugged. "The sooner the better. Certainly within two months. And it would be a very expensive operation."

Expensive! Suddenly Thorpe realized he hadn't even enough money to send Spud to Boston; then vaguely he heard Diaz say, "I have done all I can. No one could help him now but Marvin."

Marvin! Marvin and money. With a man's eye-sight at stake, it ought to be possible to raise cash somehow, somewhere. But even Spud's insurance money was gone. The equipment had been borrowed on up to the hilt, and the funds still in the bank to pay the druggists—he couldn't even touch that. Closed doors everywhere. He felt Diaz's eyes on him, and dull—he saw that he was twisting his hat between his hands.

Ray Cutter? There was no possible way for Cutter to lend him money.

"Would I need a great deal?" he heard himself asking.

"Marvin is an expensive surgeon," Diaz answered.

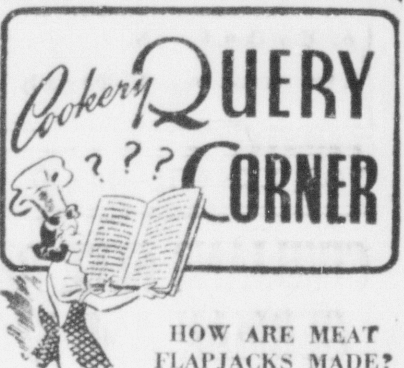

What did it matter—five hundred dollars or five thousand? He was as far from one as the other.

He raised tortured eyes to the man behind the desk. "Is Franz Alter here?"

"I think so." Diaz sent a nurse up to the laboratory.

The ticking of the clock seemed louder; while, stooped in his chair like a man in pain, Drew looked out the window upon a world that Spud would never see again unless—Marvin and money—the words began whirling through his consciousness like a taunting refrain until the door opened, and Alter entered. His quick eyes took in Drew's bent figure, then he looked toward Diaz.

"You called me?"

a leaf joins the main stem. These in turn will branch and you have a sprawling plant that's impossible to train to a stake.

You'll have to avoid this by pruning the tomatoes when they're starting their growth. Cut or pinch out the tiny shoots which develop at the angles of the first leaves while they are still small. This requires prompt action as the shoots develop rapidly while the plants are growing. Don't however, remove any shoots showing fruit buds.

Stakes not only allow you to grow more tomatoes in less space but they keep the fruit off the ground. Set a good strong stake about four or five feet high near the plant when it is transplanted or drive it in soon after. With binder twine or some suitable material, tie the plant loosely to the stake.

Use care in doing this, as you can injure the stem through rough treatment. The string should be tied just below a leaf stem.

Loop the string around the stake and tie it to the stem, or cross it between the plant and the stake. This will prevent the plant being drawn directly against the stake.

One or two stalks can be trained to each stake and the others should be removed. Many persons believe that pruned and staked tomatoes will produce more ripe fruit before frost—the fruit is better exposed to the sun.

You can use this method for staking unpruned tomato plants—drive three or four stakes in a circle about the size of a barrel hoop and nail the hoop onto them about a foot from the ground. The plant is then trained up through and over it.

Be sure to leave enough leaves on each plant to shade the fruit—the sun is likely to scald the fruit when it comes in direct contact.

We pray thy blessing, O Father, upon all who are in need. The present world circumstances have created so much of suffering, so much of pain, so much of heartache. Comfort those who are in distress and enable them to feel thy nearness, and to know that as they trust in Thee they have a peace which is above the sufferings of the flesh, which comes only to those who know and love thee. Lead us into paths of service that our ministrations may help to alleviate the abundant sufferings which surround us. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Friedman Tosses His Team To A Shut-Out Victory

FORT DIX, Aug. 2.—The Fleetwings Arrows finally snapped out of its doldrums and blanked the Fort Dix Station Hospital team here yesterday afternoon. Final score was: Fleetwings, 6; Fort Dix Station Hospital, 0.

It was George "Lefty" Friedman who tossed the shut-out victory for the aircraft workers. "Lefty" was slapped for nine safe hits but managed to bear down in the pinches to prevent the Fort Dix men from crossing the plate.

He was in trouble on several occasions, especially in the fifth when Parelo led off with a double but was later put out at third. Potter and Lanahan followed with singles and Mullins drew a pass, but still no run crossed as Heinz struck out and Warke rolled to second.

"Eddie" Miksis, after singling in the third and fifth inning, completed his afternoon's hitting in the seventh with a long home run to left field. Friedman was on base at the time. "Camel" Breslin also had three hits, all singles.

In the field, the Barbetta boys excelled. Freddie went back several times to make beautiful catches in right field, while Bert's catch of Lanahan's line drive in the eighth inning prevented two runs from crossing the plate.

BRISTOL A. A. LOSES TO FISHER NINE

The Bristol A. A. lost a tough game to the Fisher's A. A. yesterday when Bintliff's error was the cause of the winning runs being scored by the Fisher's A. A. Club when they defeated the local A. A. club by the score of 6 to 3. Lonnie Heister was hit hard by Smith, Browne and Lattanza who collected 7 of the nine hits made off him. Keegan took up the pitching burden in the 7th inning and set down Smith and Browne on strikes. The Victory Garden Manual was reviewed by John T. Frederick, professor of literature and amateur gardener, in The Chicago Sun Book Week, as follows:

"Among the many garden books that will help to make our Victory gardens successful, James H. Burdett's Victory Garden Manual is especially attractive and especially useful. It has the advantage of being clear and simple enough for the first-time gardener who needs help at every step of his Victory garden project. Yet it is so up-to-date, has so many new wrinkles and is so well organized and compact, that the experienced gardener will find it extremely usable."

"Most of our gardens yield surpluses of some vegetables—more at one time than we can use advantageously, if at all—and not nearly enough of others. Burdett's book tells how to plan our plantings, in relation to the number of prospective customers, the soil and the length of season and all other controllable factors, so that we can hope for steady, adequate and varied garden foods without distressing surpluses. I like especially his treatment of the opposite poles of the food-growing process—the starting of seeds in the early spring, and the storing of vegetables in the fall. On both these subjects Burdett gives new ideas and makes excellent suggestions."

"The illustrations in Victory Garden Manual are especially helpful, both the drawings and the photographs."

points within the defenses of the Axis defense line at the Messina bridgehead. The Americans were reported to have overrun Castellidusa, only five miles west of San Stefano in northeastern Sicily. The U. S. Seventh Army also was said to have captured Castellidulo, Motta and Pettineo in a nine-mile advance.

Tough British Eighth Army units before Catania, east coast port, widened salients pushed into the enemy's deep defensive zones and gained new bridgeheads south of the port. To the West, Canadian units pressed closer to the Germans' western flank in some of the bitterest fighting of the Sicilian campaign.

In Russia, German armies defending the big Nazi base at Orel battled desperately today in the face of Red army advances that increased the threat to the vital Orel-Bryansk railroad and narrowed the Nazi-held bottleneck west of the city to a point where a Soviet breakthrough in the German lines might soon result in complete surrounding of Orel.

Latest dispatches from the embattled front said Russian forces northwest of the city had scored new advances towards the railroad line to Bryansk, which supplies Orel. The same front line reports indicated that the Germans now held a strip of ground only 30 miles wide west of the besieged city, which is surrounded on the other three sides.

These dispatches followed a mid-night communique issued in Moscow which announced capture of more than 100 additional towns and villages north, east and south of Orel and land gains of five to eight miles.

Heavy fighting also was reported on the Donets basin, where the Russian repelled heavy German tank and infantry assaults and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy.

From the South Pacific came word of another aerial assault on the isolated Japanese garrison at Munda in the Solomons, which was raked with 27 tons of bombs. There was no news of fighting on the ground before Munda or the enemy base at Salamaua in New Guinea, 700 miles to the west.

Besides raiding the Munda garrison, Allied warplanes again attacked enemy barge routes off New Britain, where attack planes destroyed seven barges. Other planes strafed other small enemy craft off New Britain and land installations on the island.

There was still no confirmation in Washington of Vichy radio report that the long-awaited invasion of Jap-held Kiska in the Aleutians was under way. But observers said that a landing on Kiska by American forces at this juncture was quite possible.

ABSENTEEISM NOT SO BAD

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—Consolation for persons worried about absenteeism comes from a Portland shipyard executive who reports that fewer workers are going AWOL now than during the last war. Larry Rodgers, personnel manager at the Commercial Iron works shipyard, reported that absenteeism at his yard now ranges from six to 11 per cent, but the average for Portland shipyards during the last war was 15 per cent, with 23 per cent of the workers missing at one time. And in Seattle, Rodgers said, absenteeism ranged from 15 to 30 per cent while fighting in France was at its fiercest pitch.

51 Axis Planes Shot Down

Cairo—At least 51 Axis fighters were shot down yesterday when they attempted to intercept a blistering 60-second raid by 175 to 200 American bombers that devastated the seven principal refineries at the huge Romanian Ploesti oil fields.

Middle East headquarters today announced that 20 of the U. S. bombers were shot down and a number of others have not yet returned from the raid, which was declared to have "materially affected the course of the war."

A communique issued this morning revealed that distillation plants, fractionary towers, boiler houses and tanks received direct hits. Airmen reported heavy explosions and sheets of flame covered oil refinery installations after the attack.

The communique said heavy fighter and ground opposition was encountered by the raiders.
